

Proficiency-Based Teaching with Wayside

Why it Matters

Wayside's proficiency-based approach enables students to leave your classroom with the skills they need to communicate confidently in the real world.

● Goal-Oriented Lessons for Real-World Success

Teach students to communicate, not just memorize. Our lessons build real-world skills they can use outside the classroom.

● Balanced Learning Across All Modes of Communication

We blend interpretive, interpersonal, and presentational tasks. Your students understand, converse, and present with confidence.

● Interactive Practice with Engaging Input and Output

Students get rich input and plenty of chances to speak. They will understand and respond—not just listen.

● Formative Feedback to Guide, Not Just Grade

Give more than grades—provide students feedback that helps them grow and improve through meaningful feedback.

● Performance-Based Assessments

Assessments that measure real language use in real situations. No memorization, just practical skills.

● Can-Do Statements Measure Real Progress

With clear Can-Do Statements, your students know exactly what they will achieve. See growth you can measure.

● Real-Life Communication to Focus on What Matters

Students use the language in meaningful tasks from day one. No drilling—just real-world communication.

● Authentic Resources Bring Language to Life

Our materials are authentic, featuring native podcasts, videos, and articles. Students experience the language as it's truly spoken.

● Scaffolding to Build Confidence

Students receive guidance and support, gradually taking control. This ensures that everyone can succeed, regardless of skill level.

● Spontaneous Interaction in Real Conversations

Move beyond scripted dialogues. Your students engage in spontaneous conversations that prepare them for the real world.
